

Developing Innovations in Theory and Methods to Advance Research on Interpersonal Relationships and Health

The meeting “Developing Innovations in Theory and Methods to Advance Research on Interpersonal Relationships and Health” will take place between Tuesday 21st and Thursday 23rd June at the University of Zürich.

Building on a series of webinars from the previous eight months, an international network of investigators will meet to discuss advancing our understanding of health behaviours in two-person units (such as romantic couples). The meeting focuses on promoting research, collaboration, and opportunities to train young investigators, whilst also identifying the key outstanding issues in this research area.

Funded by the SNSF (grant number IZSEZO_204004 / 1), this meeting will bring together renowned experts and junior scientists from the University of Zürich (CH), University of Minnesota (USA), Columbia University (USA), National Cancer Institute (USA), Swiss Paraplegic Research (CH), SWPS University (Poland), Charité – Universitätsmedizin Berlin (Germany), and the Freie Universität Berlin (Germany).

Attendees

Prof. Urte Scholz - University of Zürich, Switzerland
Prof. Alex Rothman – University of Minnesota, USA
Prof. Jeff Simpson – University of Minnesota, USA

Dr. Jim Allen - University of Zürich, Switzerland
Dr. Corina Berli - University of Zürich, Switzerland
Patrick Höhener - University of Zürich, Switzerland
Pascal Küng - University of Zürich, Switzerland
Dr. Janina Lüscher - Swiss Paraplegic Research, Nottwil, Switzerland
Dr. Konstantin Schenkel - University of Zürich, Switzerland
Dr. Karoline Villinger - University of Zürich, Switzerland

Prof. Nina Knoll - Freie Universität Berlin, Germany
Dr. Jan Keller - Freie Universität Berlin, Germany
Sally Di Maio - Freie Universität Berlin, Germany

Dr. Chloe Huelsnitz – National Cancer Institute, USA
Monique Nakamura – University of Minnesota, USA

Prof. Niall Bolger - Columbia University, USA

Prof. Aleksandra Luszczynska - SWPS University, Poland/University of Colorado Colorado Springs, USA
Dr. Anna Banik - SWPS University, Poland

Prof. Gertraud Stadler - Charité – Universitätsmedizin Berlin, Germany
Julia Roseman – Charité – Universitätsmedizin Berlin, Germany